

The Relationship Between Health and Finances

AUGUST 13, 2019 | 11 a.m. ET

About this Webinar

Financial counselors frequently observe relationships between health and personal finances in their work with clients. Examples include money spent on smoking that cannot be saved, the financial impact of an accident or illness, and decisions that people make with respect to health insurance. This webinar will discuss a variety of associations between health and finances and health and financial practices.

The webinar will begin with a Wellness Wheel activity and group discussion questions about health and personal finance relationships. Next, Dr. Gutter will discuss research about cancer and personal finances. Dr. O'Neill will conclude the webinar with a discussion of the findings and implications of six studies of associations between various health and financial practices.
